Commanding Officer's Family Readiness Vision and Guidance

Vision: Marine Air Support Squadron 2 will maintain Combat Readiness by operating a Family Readiness Program that allows Marines to remain focused on mission accomplishment with the assurance that their family and its affairs are in order. The Marine Air Support Squadron 2 Family Readiness Program will be tailored to meet our needs, provide official two-way communication, Information and Referral services, and Readiness and Deployment Support.

Guidance: The Family Readiness Program will provide opportunities and nurture individual development while facilitating balance in the individuals and families of MASS 2. Our goal is to improve the Marines' experience, increase combat readiness and create/maintain a program that extends beyond the work sections. The end result will be an enhanced Marine who has grown during their Okinawa experience though understanding and engagement in the local community.

- All our MASS 2 Marines and Sailors are part of the MASS 2 Family Readiness Program.

- The Family Readiness Program will provide Information and Referral support for all family members to include services and resources available through the DoD and MCCS.

- Multiple communication means will be utilized to assist in keeping families informed including email, phone calls, Mass Communication Tool, the MASS 2 newsletter, the official MASS 2 website, and Facebook.

- Confidentiality and personal privacy will be protected.

- The Family Readiness Officer will be the initial point of contact for all family readiness inquiries.

A. J. MacBain
Lieutenant Colonel, U. S. Marine Corps
Commanding Officer
Marine Air Support Squadron 2